All of this class of cattle that were in were offered and good grades were readily sold. Poor cows and thin stuff were slow and hard sale at mean prices even. There was no charge noted in the Chicago market, while Kansas City was quoted easy.

The run of hogs was good today. The market was strong and active and good hogs sold readily at good prices. Considerable sorting was done to even up some bunches, but altogether the market was very satisfactory. Pigs and roughs were a drug on the market and were hard to get rid of, selling at from $2.25 to $3.50. Chicago and Kansas City markets were quoted active and 5 cents higher.

Had a Right to Be Scared. The average Maine drummer isn't a su-perstitious man by any means, but there are things that will startle even a Maine

While at his home in a Maine village a representative of a Portland house was walking up street with a well known sea captain. As they passed the cemetery Capt. B. looked across and remarked with much expression:

We must both go in there soon, my ov, to stay. It's lucky I don't believe in resentiments, for I feel bluer than a whetstone today." The next day Capt. B. lay dead, stricken v apoplexy.

The strange coincidence impressed his friend so forcibly that he was completely unerved and he experienced genuine fear as he thought of the captain's weird prophecy that had already been fulfilled in art so strangely and sadly. "I was really scared," he afterward exclained to me. "I am no old granny about such things, but somehow this upset me. That night I gloomily ate my supper, carcely thinking about what I was doing Therefore I probably failed to properly chew a piece of tough steak, and the morsel 'stuck' when I attempted to swallow it. My breath was stopped in an instant, and after kicking like a steer I tumbled out of my chair on the floor. I don't know what all the thoughts were that went through my mind, but I was the scaredest man in ten counties. Thinks I, 'I'm going to fol-low Cap.' Some one whacked me in the back and I came out of my choking fit, but I tell you I never want to go through any thing like that again!"-Lewiston Journal.

Victor Hugo's Monster No Longer Fiction. In 1867 a very large cuttlefish, averaging about twenty feet in length in the body alone, was met by a French war vessel between Madeira and Teneriffe. Later on great squids were seen on the American oast, and chiefly in the north, whither possibly they may have been attracted by the prospects of suitable food in the cod. Actual measurements of some of these big squids, which, by the way, also occur off the Irish coast now and then, give bodies ranging from ten to twenty feet in length exclusive of the arms, which, as regards the two long ones at least, may be set down at thirty feet in length.

So that the realization of the zoological phantasy of the "Toflers of the Sea" has ome in a very decided fashion indeed in the shape of the Newfoundland giant cuttles, whose powers of attack may be regarded as fully equal to those credited to he big devil fish of the great French novelist. Furthermore, it may be suggested that a huge cuttlefish rushing across the surface of the sea, propelled backward by its jets of water, with its head and arms, leaving a long "wash" behind, may very aptly appear as a fit representative of the sea serpent itself. From various accounts given of the "great unknown" of the deep it seems pretty certain that what was seen was really a giant cuttlefish swimming swiftly through the water, its movements, and especially those of its arms, counter feiting closely the motions of a serpentine form.-Fall River News.

A Wooden Legged Dog.

About thirty years ago a humane Vermonter, by the name of Tewksbury, took pity on a small dog of uncertain breed, one f whose forelegs had been crushed by the wheel of a wagon. Being something of a surgeon, Mr. Tewksbury earefully ampu tated the crushed leg, and when the wound was healed provided the dog with a light and strong wooden leg.

In the course of time the dog, which was a very intelligent little animal, became aware that he could rest his weight upon this wooden leg, and use it for all ordinary purposes, and that, while it was not as good as either of the other three legs, it was better than no leg.

In walking or trotting Mr. Tewksbury's dog always used his wooden leg. If, however, he had occasion to do any leaping or fast running, or to show in any way especial nimbleness, with which the stiffness of his rtificial limb would have interfered, he held up the wooden leg gracefully and leaped or ran on the other three.

The dog lived to a good old age, respected and admired by all who knew him. His #50 P M #50 A M and admired by all who knew him. The magnolia perfume is imitated without using the flower at all, which is too large to macerate with success. Indian lemon grass likewise gives "Extract of Verbena." With the rose as a foundation, Verbena. and a dash of verbena, the perfume of the delicate and fleeting "Sweetbrier" is obtained. Many of the spices enter into the making of perfumes with high sounding names.-New York Ledger.

Nankin China Popular Again. Old Nankin china has come into favor again, Mr. Dickinson, of Wigmore street, told me. This is partly owing to tler, to whom a long needed blue and white wase had just been sold, introducing the canary colored walls. It was a dragon on a white ground, and he said he couldn't resist it, though rather expensive, "Here's half a dozen plates that are going to Mrs. Humphrey Ward," said the dealer. "They're got the hawthorn spray"—a valuable design in Nankin chi-na. These will make up Mrs. Ward's set. There are vases from eighteen pence to more than 1,800 shillings. The prices asked, in fact, are startling to those ignorant of Nankin values .- Pall Mall Budget.

Cooling Trains with Water.

A new method for ventilating railway carriages and preventing dust from entering with the air has lately appeared in France. The more quickly the train moves the more rapidly the apparatus works. The air is made to traverse a receptacle containing water, which cools it and relieves it of dust, after which it goes through another filtering before entering the carriage.-New York Journal.

Commencing Sunday, July Edisso, the Masouri Pacific railway will run through sleeping cars from St. Louis via Pleasant Hill, Rich Hill, Fort Scott and Wichita to the control of the contr Geneseo and from thence to Pueblo. Colo-rado Springs and Denver. This change was made on account of a great many peo-ple from the east going to Colorado being destrous of going via Wichita. The train will stop here two hours, giving all a chance to view the "Peerloss Princess" and still land passengers in Colorado same time as if they had gone via Kansas City. It also gives the critzens of Wichita sleep-ing car service from here to Colorado. Roling car service from here to Colorado. Returning, it gives us through sleeping car service Wichita to St. Louis, and gives the Colorado people a chance to go cast via Wichita. This change will undoubtedly be appreciated by the traveling public and especially by the citizens of Wichita. If you are going east or west go via the popular new through route. Through mais and sleeping car service. New route just completed between Fort Scott and Rich Hill goes through the linest mineral and agricultural country in the west.
